New owners for Bolton double glazed units business

A manufacturer of double glazed units in Bolton has new owners.

Joe Hadcroft and his uncle Ralph Hadcroft have bought Crown Glass, based at Julia House, on Julia Street, in Horwich, from Neil Carroll, who has run the business for more than 10 years.

Crown Glass manufactures double glazed units for the trade and the public.

The company also offers a replacement of double glazed units service, including a measuring and fitting glass service for households, and repairs to and reconditioning of double glazed units.

In addition, it also cuts glass to size and offers toughened and laminated safety glass, lead and decorative glass, glass for mirrors, glass for table tops and fire safety glass for shops and offices.

Customers can send their specifications (even photographs) by email or SMS and quotations are provided to them the very same day. While non-toughened glass is provided the same day, special orders are also welcome for custom glass such as A-rated glazing, Argon gas filled units and Planitherm units.

Commenting on the purchase of the business, Joe said: “We hope to welcome existing customers of the business - local people and local businesses in the coming weeks and months.

“For trade customers such as joiners, small builders and window installers, we can provide non-toughened double glazed units for windows, doors and conservatories, the same day, as well as providing glass balustrades, glass for pubs, fire safety glass for shops and offices, glass for shop fronts and glass for Juliette balconies,” said Joe.

“For the public, we will happily come out and measure the windows and then deliver and fit the replacement units,” he added.
